Household Science Club Met at Nelson

Nelson, Jan. 30.—A very interesting all day meeting of the Household Science club was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Carl Janssen, who was assisted in entertaining by her niece, Miss Evelyn Janssen at Nelson. A fine scramble dinner was served at noon, which was followed by a short business session.
The club opened their meeting by all singing "America," after which the secretary, Miss Elizabeth Wolfe, gave her report. A very enjoyable talk on "How to Judge Good Towing" was given by Mrs. Howard Switzer, and Mrs. C. L. Lane gave an instructive talk on "Bedding." A collection was then taken for the flower fund. The delegate appointed to attend the state meeting at Waukegan is Mrs. Bernard Wolfe. Mrs. C. L. Lane will serve as alternate.
The meeting was closed in due form, and the remainder of the afternoon was enjoyed socially, by having three guessing contests, for which Mrs. Chas. Beard, Mrs. Besie Wolf and Miss Florence Swartz were awarded the first prizes. The consolation prizes were given to Mrs. Clifford Clymer and Mrs. Clifford Poisel. The next meeting will be held next month.

Elizabeth Martin's Birthday Party

Miss Elizabeth Martin entertained a company of six friends at a party Thursday evening at her home, in honor of her birthday. Games and music occupied the happy evening, after the appetizing dinner was enjoyed. The centerpiece was a tempting white birthday cake with pink candles, and at either side of the cake were tall pink tapers. On departing for home all her friends wished Elizabeth many happy returns of the day. The guests were Misses Marian Gilbert, Carrie Heckman, Elizabeth and Jean Louise Frey, Anna Marie Schafer, and Marie Gonnemann.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by ALLENE SUMNER

The stewardess threw a certain lady's husband's ashes out the port-hole, thinking they were cigarette ashes, and with this novel theme Louis Bromfield makes his story called "The Urn," one of the cleverest tales read in ages.
Mrs. Horace Wimpole had glided in her husband's funeral. She had arranged every detail of it with him before he died. The press notices were very flattering. Mrs. Horace sat there at the funeral on a little dais, dressed all in spotless white, a bunch of tuberoses lying across her bare arms. There was a wreath of tuberoses pressed down over her gray hair above the nose-glasses. Mrs. Horace lapped up such remarks as, "Doesn't she look lovely and serene?" or "She has made a beautiful thing of death."

That funeral was in Paris. It was such a success that Mrs. Horace wanted to have one back home, too. So she put Horace's ashes in a black and purple urn and started home. But in the throes of seasickness she neglected to give the urn the proper care, and the stewardess threw the ashes out the port-hole. There was a scene, a terrible one. But after a while Mrs. Horace calmed down and gave the stewardess 500 francs to keep still. She screwed the top down on the urn.

The ceremony of casting Horace's ashes to the four winds was a great success. Mrs. Horace was all dressed in white with tuberoses on her brow, and the papers and motion picture cameras were quite occupied.
"And only the widow and a Norman stewardess ever knew that Horace Wimpole had escaped at last after 22 years."
Mrs. Horace Wimpole should become almost a classical expression for a type of "managing wife," and one who will utilize even a husband's ashes in a dramatic presentation of herself. I've known many Mrs. Horaces.

WOMAN BUSINESS

It seems to be rather generally agreed by both male and female thinkers of the day that any talk about "fighting for the emancipation of women" is pretty much the bunk, and that if anybody needs to be "emancipated," it's man. Within a week both a male thinker and female one have said about the same thing in the persons of Count Hermann Keyserling, great philosopher and author, and Miss Elizabeth Marbury, woman political leader, lecturer and author.

I wonder how much they know, however, about the majority of women today. Perhaps the ones we see and know and observe, especially women of the cities, need no more "emancipating," but how about these hundreds of thousands which statistics tell us carry all water for household use from a pump in the yard, though their husband's barns are equipped with running water and electricity?

YOU'RE "TACKLE"

Did it ever occur to you that when you complain you "simply can't find a thing I can wear or want in the stores," you are really complaining that you are chasing an old-fashioned, totally out-of-date woman of your own? I know a friend who has chased through the stores all winter looking for a low-crowned, wide-brimmed hat of gold or brown lace and metallic cloth. She can't find it, and has plenty to say about what the stores offer. The whole point is that because she once had a hat like this which she liked she insists on having a similar one every year, and as a result looks "plain tacky."

Open Meeting Woman's Club

The open meeting of the Dixon Woman's club sponsored by the Health department proved to be a very enjoyable and enthusiastic one. The chairman of the Health department, Mrs. Jessie Burtfield presented.

sented Miss Virginia Hawkins who pleased the audience with two well played selections, "Habanera," from the opera Carmen, "Moonlight on the Lagoon," by Rudolph Friml.

The speaker for the afternoon was Dr. J. J. Litner of Chicago, Federal Inspector of Tuberculosis eradication in the state of Illinois, speaking on the topic "Plain Facts for the Housewife," which outlined and explained the vital subjects, meat and milk inspection. He stated that the greater portion of our food supply comes from the animal kingdom in the form of meat and milk and the wholesomeness of the product depends upon the origin of the supply, which should be from healthy inspected animals. Meat with the blue label carries the stamp of federal inspection.

Stress was placed on the source (from T. B. inspected cattle) sanitary handling and pasteurization of milk. The wholesomeness of milk not produced under these conditions should be questioned and rarely used. Let us be true to our convictions, demand that which we have a perfect right to have a healthy meat and milk supply. We are entitled to it for ourselves and our community.

Dr. Barth, Lee county's veterinarian, stationed at Amboy, concluded the program with a survey of conditions in and around Dixon. Only a few of our sources of milk supply can be recommended and in no instance is there a source where improvement cannot be made and it is an astonishing and unbelievable fact that a community as large as Dixon has no milk ordinance requiring that milk be free from T. B. This alone should be enough to bring about the part of each and every citizen that goes to feed for this progressive and flourishing community.

Coffee and blue labeled sandwiches were appropriately and artistically served by the hostesses Mesdames Rusch, Slothower, Cahill, Smith, Stoner, Miss Pitt, Miss Hanes.

License Would Curb Rockless Driving

Chicago, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Curb unskillful and reckless driving with an automobile driver's license. The Illinois Women's Joint Legislative Forum was advised today.

Passage of a driver's license law will rid the roadways of some of their hazards, said Sidney J. Williams, of the National Safety Council.

The Legislative Forum has attracted 200 club women for the discussion of child labor, women on juries, election laws, maternity and infancy care, home rule, state reformatory for women, automobile laws, educational legislation and the eight-hour day.

Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. George Dorrance and two daughters were here from Rockford, guests at the home of Mrs. Ethel Trotter, where they enjoyed a meeting a number of former friends and neighbors. Is Out of Sympathy With Organizations

Washington, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in charge of women's activities of the New York Democratic State Committee, is out of sympathy with two Washington organizations—the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League and the Federation of Democratic Women.

A division with the law enforcement league was noted in letters exchanged between Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, the League's president, in which the New York Woman declined an invitation to attend the organization's recent convention here. Another letter, made public in New York, expressed Mrs. Roosevelt's objection to the federal tion's stand against legislation supported by the Children's bureau, and questioned its right to a title that implied that it "represents the overwhelming sentiment of the women of the democratic party."

The letter to Mrs. Nicholson suggested that the league should change its title to "National Woman's Dry Enforcement League" unless it is making as great an effort in behalf of the fourteenth and fifteenth, or voting, amendments as it is in support of the prohibition amendment.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she was personally "absolutely dry" but that she disagreed with those "who think this question the question of vital importance today." There seems, she added, a "great deal of muddled thinking" especially among certain women, as to how to obtain temperance.

BOOKS THAT WE LEND AND LOSE

By Olive Roberts Barton
"I must gather up all the books I've borrowed," said a girl recently, "and return them to their owners. The trouble is I've had most of them so long I don't know the people they variously belong to. I wish people would write their names in their books."

"I do it and it doesn't do much good," I replied impatiently.
"Well, I've made a New Year's resolution not to borrow any more books," she said. "They're more nuisance than they're worth."

"You're right," said I. "I have made a New Year's resolution not to lend any. They're worth too much to lose."
A member of my family wrote a book in the spring. It has been one of the year's best sellers. I bought two copies at two dollars and a half apiece, for, contrary to popular belief, authors are not given their own books, nor members of their families. Now I have none, both copies are gone—their places in my book shelves are empty.

We are talking of Margaret Kennedy's new book, "Red Star in the Morning." I wished to refer to "The Constant Nymph," her former popular, to make a comparison. Gone! And I know not how many others. I dare not look at my book shelves any more. Always I am discovering a new tragedy. What is to be done?

Want Your Mail Delivered? Then Keep Walks Clear.

The following item is copied from the January Supplement to the Postal Guide of January, 1928, issued by the Post Office Department at Washington, D. C.

In most cities it is the duty of the home owner or landlord, under penalty of the law, to remove snow from the sidewalk in front of their properties, and it is likewise the duty of civic authorities to clear streets to such an extent as to make them passable. Postmasters are therefore urged to call this matter to the attention of both property owners and civic authorities in their respective cities whenever there is a disposition to lag in removing snow, reminding them that failure to do so may result in the suspension of mail deliveries. This also applies to paved walks or steps which necessarily have to be traversed by the carrier in order to reach the mail receptacle or the door slot. It is his interests that command our attention, that he may throughout the entire winter season render a service satisfactory to all his patrons.

"The aim and purpose of the entire personnel of the Postal Service is to handle and deliver the mail as expeditiously as possible, regardless of weather conditions, and to this end the department has authorized the employment of additional help in the way of man power and vehicles whenever needed. However, our high purposes cannot be accomplished without the cooperation of our patrons in removing snow from steps and sidewalks speedily, and making streets passable immediately after every snow storm."

Postmaster Meyer wishes to express his appreciation of the cooperation of civic authorities and the majority of his patrons, however, there are a good many places in the city, especially in the outlying districts where this very important matter seems to be lost sight of, and this letter just at this time when there seems to be some likelihood of snow fall, is hoped to awaken the interest of those who have in the past been negligent."

THE COURSE OF EMPIRE.

Less than a year ago, when the Nationalist army was headed toward Peking, many of our more optimistic idealists were in ecstasy over the expectation that the long-suffering Chinese were about to establish for themselves a strong, united and progressive nation.

That fine dream months ago went blooey. China remains divided and not far from chaos. The war lords still rule their various spheres.

It is an interesting matter of speculation whether China will ever pull herself out of the mud or not. We recall that famous line of Bishop Berkeley's: "Westward the course of empire takes its way."

China had developed a high civilization while Europe was still a wilderness, thousands of years ago. Empire and civilization have gradually come west and now make their abode in these United States, for all Britain's desperate clutch in their coat-tails. How many centuries before these twin forces will desert us and cross the Pacific? Or will they stay here forever? Many now living have seen Japan rise to the status of a world power—a dead nation, it would almost seem, risen again.

George Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel, the old German philosopher, said that "China and India lie still outside the world's history, as the mere presupposition of elements whose combination must be waited for to constitute their vital progress." Hegel named Persia as "the first empire that passed away" while India and China "perpetuate a natural vegetative existence even to the present time."

Perhaps Hegel felt that China's real chance at the game of empire lay in the future and not the past. One recalls what Berkeley said along with warnings in recent years about "Yellow-Peril" and "Rising Tide of Color."

But Aristotle said: "The genius of the Europeans is different from that of the Asiatics, who of all nations are the most patient of despotism." Historian George Rawlinson reported that "Slow conquests, long struggles of race against race, amalgamations, insensible growth and development of political systems, to which we are habituated in records of the east, are unknown to the countries lying eastward of the Hellespont. . . . Rapid conquest causes no assimilation."

Events of this century have indicated, however, that China, under foreign domination, has begun the slow process of assimilation and it may be that the next few hundred years will be most important.

Empire and Civilization have been traveling at a fast clip these last two or three hundred years.

WELL, WE'RE NOT IN HEDJAZ, ANYWAY.

Now and then, from certain disgruntled units of the population, you hear the complaint that there are too many laws in America, that you can't do this and you can't do that because you'll be slapped into jail if you do, and that personal liberty has fled from this land forever.

There may be a grain of truth in what they're saying, but the other day we were reading a dispatch from Hedjaz, Arabia, and there was just a kernel of comfort in it.

The monarch of the dashing desert tribes, those wild fellows who look so free and easy when you see them in the movies, has forbidden the use of tobacco among his peoples. Silk garments and perfume may not be worn. Shaving is a crime. Alcohol is taboo.

These is no room in Hedjaz for reformers for Boss Ibn Saud has done the job well. The people of that country aren't "all dressed up and no place to go" because they aren't dressed up in the first place and there wouldn't be any place to go if they were, in the second place.

We have lots of laws, but we don't live in Hedjaz. Anyway, we still can shave and smoke.

With this epidemic of kidnaping the young and innocent, how is it that the yeggs have overlooked the Senate?

A man in Indianapolis named Gustav Papathwidokomounfrgcpulos was listed as delinquent in taxes. If we had to write that name on a check we'd be delinquent in lots more things than taxes.

Some people are silent. Perhaps they are only speaking their minds.

Two of the oldest chickens in the world were exhibited at a poultry show in New York the other day. They must have paid some boarding house proprietor a pretty price for them.

A woman writes to a doctor to say her 17-months-old baby eats dirt whenever he can get it. That probably indicates he'll grow up to be a politician or some other kind of mud fancier.

When pupils in a New Jersey school voted for "their heroes," two of the boys named "Wad." There must have been a good show in town that night.

Colivia reports a rain of stones. But maybe it's just one of our aviators dropping some of that good will cement.

We haven't read the statement but will bet some strong language was used in Governor Derr's report to Congress on the Boulder Dam project.

THE KNYMATES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Times shook the old man's hand. The dog then howled to beat the band. "Say, what's his name? Is he scared of us, or what? I'll pat him. Then he will not fuss, and maybe he will play with us. What is his name?" The old man promptly answered, "It is Spot."

"Here, Spot!" cried Clowdy. "Come on, hound. Be friendly! Chase me all around. I'll take you to a nearby stream where you can get a drink." And, as he ran, the dog ran, too. It seemed exactly like he knew what Clowdy said. They reached the little streamlet in a wink.

"I'll show you how to drink with ease," said Clowdy, on his hands and knees. He leaned far forward, then dipped down until he had his fill. The big dog took his turn and then they went back to the bunch again. "What can we do now?" Carpy asked. "We've heaps of time to kill."

"Twas then the kindly woodsman spied their cracker box. He loudly cried, "I'll tell you what. Let's make some wheels. I'll saw them from a tree. It won't take long, and when they're done, I'll show you how to have some fun. If all you lads are seeking sport, just leave the plans to me."

This pleased the bunch. They said they'd help, and as the dog began to yelp, they looked around among the trees to find one that was down. Then Scout cried, "Hurrah! It's found. A beauty's right here on the ground." The woodsman grabbed his saw and said, "I'll do this thing up brown."

"If someone wants to help, just lend a hand, and grab the other end," Wee Scouty did, and loudly cried, "Just leave the help to me." They saved and sawed for quite a while, and then the bunch began to smile. Four wheels were cut right off the trunk, as neat as they could be.

(A dandy cart is made in the next story.)

SAINT and SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN

For Faith, the next few days were slow, sweet, dream-filled, love-gladdened. Sinking gladly into the laziness which her brief but violent illness had made necessary, she knew for almost the first time in her twenty-two years what it means to rest.

She found herself strangely content to lie almost motionless for long hours, dreaming of the child that was so miraculously to be hers and Bob's. She had lost weight alarmingly during her week in the hospital, but her almost ethereal thinness was becoming to her. She liked to look at the long slender lines of her body, at the magnolia-petal whiteness and fineness of her skin. Her brown eyes were larger and more luminous than ever, now mystic with dreams. The old quality of anxious watchfulness was gone from them, for now there was nothing to fear. Her contralto voice was low and rich, the slow, caressing voice of a woman beloved and in love.

It was sweet and infinitely restful to lie there, serenely withdrawn from the bustle of the household, yet beautifully identified with it, since it was her home. Rhoda's devotion and her amazing efficiency as cook and housekeeper proved a priceless boon to Faith during those days of her weakness.

"You're getting so you eat real well," Rhoda applauded Faith toward the end of the week. "But I'm worried about Cherry. She doesn't eat enough to keep a sparrow hopping, and she's having to use twice as much rouge as she used to, to keep you from seeing how pale she is. I saw her weighing on the bathroom scales this morning and honestly, she only weighed ninety-one pounds!"

"Have you heard from Nils, Rhoda?" Faith asked, with apparent irrelevance.

"Only a note with some money in it for my singing lessons," Rhoda frowned. "It was mailed from the agricultural college he went to. I can't imagine what he's doing there, unless he's gone to consult the research department on some farm problem. He's a nut on scientific farming and pedigreed stock. Pop—my father, I mean—used to get hopping mad at him, said Nils would squander everything he'd saved all his life to leave us, on high-faluting notions and blue ribbon stock that was liable to up and die on him and then where'd he be? Pop was old-fashioned, but he did make money," she worried. Then her babyish little pink mouth tightened grimly. "I'd like to tell his brother of mine a thing or two! He's breaking Cherry's heart, going off like that and not even writing her a line!"

"I thought you were afraid Cherry would break Nils' heart," Faith reminded her casually, but her pulse had quickened with hope that she would learn something vital from these ingenuous confidences of Nils' sister.

"That was when I didn't think Cherry was in love with him," Rhoda defended her inconsistency. "I thought she was just playing with him, like she's done with so many men. I read the paper during her trial, and they made her out an awful flirt," she hastened to explain as Faith flushed warningly. "Now I don't believe she was half as bad as they made out, and I know she's just sick over the way Nils is treating her. I've a good notion to write Nils and give him a piece of my mind."

"No," Faith begged quickly. "Don't do that, Rhoda. We have no right to interfere."

LINDY, LOST IN FOG, APOLOGIZED TO VENEZUELAN

Delayed an Hour Making
Trip to Caracas
Sunday Afternoon

Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Venezuela today honored an intrepid aviator who after a flight over perilous mountains lost his way in a fog, but despite these obstacles reached his goal.

Arriving at Maracay, fifty miles west of here, ten hours after he started from Bogota, Colombia, Charles A. Lindbergh's first act was to apologize to President Gomez for having kept him waiting at the flying field. An anxious crowd had awaited his arrival for two hours. His flight covered 650 miles, airline.

Lindbergh told the President that after reaching Ortiz, about 110 miles south of Caracas, he ran into a fog. He then lost his way. It was growing late when he found the coast at Higuerote, 100 miles east of here and 150 miles from his destination. Once he had found the way he sped toward Caracas, passing over the city at 5:15 P. M. The Spirit of St. Louis then followed the concrete road from the capital to the field.

Lindbergh landed at 6 P. M. When the aviator apologized to the President for his lateness, the President replied that his only wish was for Lindbergh to arrive safely in order that he might welcome him. President Gomez then embraced the aviator and gave him the decoration of the Order of the Liberator.

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Colombia today paid tribute to the Lone Eagle who blazed an air trail over towering mountains to its capital.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is the first aviator to cross the tangles to the valley in which Bogota lies.

He came from Carriagena, some 400 miles away. Over rugged mountains enshrouded in clouds, past dense tropical jungles and dangerous rapids and across an unknown country Lindbergh flew over one of the most daring journeys of his present tour.

Lindbergh had promised that he would be here at 3 p. m. Well before the time, however, the Spirit of St. Louis came into sight, cleaving its way through a bank of fleecy white clouds, the plane swept low over Madrid Field, while thousands cheered. The plane then swept upward and headed for Bogota.

A few minutes later Lindbergh was circling the capital.

Landed at 3 P. M. Just as the hands of the clock pointed to 3, Lindbergh landed on the flying field.

The crowd surged forward. A detachment from the aviation school quickly surrounded the plane to protect it from damage. As Lindbergh stepped from the plane, he was picked up by some of the crowd who carried him to the place of honor. The band struck up the American national anthem and then that of Colombia. General Reyes Luna, secretary of the Minister of War, extended the greetings of the nation.

As the flyer rode through the narrow streets of the city, a shower of flowers fell upon him from the balconies where dark eyed senoritas stood.

President Mendez will bestow upon Lindbergh the coveted Boyaca Cross before he leaves for Caracas, Venezuela, Sunday.

There will also be a bull fight in his honor, the third to be staged for the flyer in his tour.

NEWS of the CHURCHES

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
BOYNTON CAMPAIGN.

Last night the pastor preached to a large and attentive audience on the subject of "The Borrowed Cross."

He said, "There occurs nowhere in history a case like the Master's for self emptying. He emptied Himself in proved to be true by His lack of worldly possessions. So poor that a manger had to be borrowed for Him to be born in. When someone wanted to follow Him, he said, 'Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath nowhere to lay His head.' When the multitude were hungry in the wilderness, He had to borrow from the little that He had to feed them and then gave back to the lender from whom He had borrowed, twelve baskets full of the fragments that were left. He had to send to Bethphage to borrow the ass that He rode into Jerusalem on that last Palm Sunday. The room in which He held His last passover was borrowed also.

But the greatest borrowing of all was the cross on which He was crucified. By right it was made for Barabbas, the noted robber and insurrectionist and not for Christ, but when the Governor gave the mob their choice of a prisoner being released unto them, they cried, 'Not this man but Barabbas.' And after scourging He took that borrowed cross upon His poor bruised shoulders and tried to carry it to Calvary. Simon the Cyrenian carried it for Him. 'There they crucified Him.'

After His death one would have thought that the borrowings would cease, but they did not for they laid in borrowed robes in the borrowed tomb of Joseph of Arimathea, but death could not hold his prey. He arose from the grave and at the right hand of God the Father His borrowings have ceased for ever and he ever reigns a Mighty King and Conqueror having purchased for us on His borrowed cross redemption and life which He now proffers to each of us.

Tonight at 7:30 p. m., Dr. M. P. Boynton will be with us again and we are hoping to have a real good time in his services. He will be with us every night until and including Friday. On Tuesday night, we are to have the pleasure of hearing the Amboy Baptist church orchestra with us to give us some music. Special music every night this week. On Wednesday night we will have a scramble supper at 6 p. m. Please bring along sandwiches, dishes and silver and an extra dish. The Doctor is going to "speak on 'Unified Budgets.' A bright hearty welcome awaits you. Come.

GRACE EVANGELICAL CHURCH
NORTH SIDE

E. Fellows St. and No. Ottawa Ave. Rev. Frank Brandt, Pastor.

The special revival services which have been in progress for three weeks under the leadership of Rev. F. W. Deutsche of Chadwick, Illinois, came to a close last evening.

A public subscription was taken and when a fund of $14,300.00 was raised, the ancestral estates of Bernerside were purchased and presented to him as a gift of the people. Before retiring to his estates he received the freedom of all the large English cities and was made Chancellor of St. Andrews University.

In 1922 he accepted a directorship on the board of the largest whisky combine in Scotland, which at that time absorbed the distilling interests of the Haig family.

In most of his characteristics Lord Haig was typically the Scotchman. His manner was tipped with that which was considered more adamant than the granite of Aberdeen and he possessed that primary virtue of his country, patience. Lord Haig's manner through the entire war is said to have never changed, never was there depression or elation shown on his face.

His reticence and natural aloofness caused him to be accused of a frigid personality but his silence was not the result of a lack of sympathy. His friends say it was because he used words as he used men, sparingly but always with method.

Lord Haig married in 1905 the Hon. Dorothy Vivian, a daughter of Lord Vivian. They had four children.

to a close last evening. The evangelist preached a powerful sermon on the "Vision of the Cross" to a large audience of worshippers. A rousing testimony and praise service in which a large number of Christians took part was indeed a fitting climax to the meeting. We praise God for the ten souls that bowed humbly at the altar of prayer.

On Wednesday evening the regular prayer services for the whole family will be resumed. We urge every member to be present and invite friends to fellowship with us.

Next Sunday morning new members will be received and a baptismal service will be held. We invite all who are saved and desire to unite with us in church fellowship to get in touch with the pastor this week.

We preach Christ crucified, risen and coming again.

When Judge Fisher in the Cook county circuit court declared the primary law unconstitutional, many persons got the erroneous idea that his decree applied only to Chicago and Cook county, since the suit was originally brought to stop the April primaries there. A perusal of his final decree soon dispels this impression.

Among other things, Judge Fisher decreed:

"That the defendant, L. L. Emmerson, do and shall absolutely desist and refrain from in any manner hiring clerical help and from paying therefor work to be performed and from purchasing supplies and other paraphernalia to be used in the matter of accepting or receiving nominating petitions of candidates for state and legislative offices, presidential electors, trustees of the University of Illinois, congressmen at large and delegates and alternate delegates at large to national nominating conventions for various political parties and certifying the same to any and all county clerks of Illinois."

What Decree Means.
Stripped of its verbose legal phraseology, the decree definitely bars Secretary of State Emmerson or county clerks from receiving, or in any way handling nominating petitions.

When the legislature adjourned for two weeks to await the decision of the Supreme court in the primary test case now pending before that tribunal, it was generally agreed that candidates would prepare and file their nominating petitions, as if the 1927 act was constitutional.

Even the information that Judge Fisher's injunction would not constitute a bar to filing. When asked this specific question, he said that he had been told that the decree did not stop filing of petitions.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS CATHEDRAL TO GIVE SPACE TO PANEL OF SPORT

New York's Great Cathedral to Show Major Sports

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—An unfinished corner of the Nave of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine today stood dedicated to the principle that there is a kinship between the religion of the soul and that of the body.

Bishop William T. Manning in behalf of the Episcopal Church, assigned a place in the great cathedral for the stained glass window, for which the world of sport had contributed $150,000, accepting the contribution from Julian S. Myrick, chairman of the Sports and Games Committee, in a service which he called "not quite like any service ever held anywhere."

As a wintry wind swept through the open space which will soon house the graphic story of athletic competition, Bishop Manning hailed the event as "a witness against that mistaken view of religion which was expressed in the Puritan sabbath and in the old blue laws."

Secretary of War Dwight W. Davis, donor of the historic Davis Cup now in the custody of the French tennis authorities, was one of the speakers at the exercises who traced the growth of athletic competition from its localized beginning to its present universality of appeal.

The window depicts 26 of the major athletic sports of our time. In the left panel, six feet wide and 18 feet high, the four medallions picture Polo, golf, tennis and baseball, while from top to bottom the semi-circular sections on either side show the steeple-chase, cycling, basketball, handball, swimming, gymnastics, yachting, bowling and billiards.

The right panel represents in its medallions racing, rowing, track and field, and football, and in the surrounding half sections skating, hockey, soccer, fencing, wrestling, pole-vaulting, boxing and motor-boating.

In the rose pattern above the two panels, completing the window, the medallion shows an angel in flowing robes placing a laurel wreath upon the brow of an athlete.

Jennings Near Death

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 30.—(AP)—The condition of Hughie Jennings, famous baseball figure and former manager of Detroit, remained unchanged here today, attending physicians said. Jennings, stricken with meningitis Saturday, lapsed into unconsciousness yesterday and little hope is held for his recovery.

Wilson is Held Out

Chicago, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Hack Wilson, Chicago Cubs slugging outfielder, like Charlie Root, Cub pitcher, wants more money for performing in 1928 so he has returned his contract unsigned.

Root sent in his unsigned contract several days ago. Wilson dispatched his yesterday.

Both are confident the salary differences can be adjusted and that they will be with the Cubs when they start their spring training.

Root was the leading pitcher last year and Wilson tied with Cy Williams for home run honors, each bagging 30.

McTigue Will Meet Lomski Friday Eve

New York, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Mike McTigue, veteran stalwart of the ring, starts his club on "come-back road" against Leo Lomski, rugged Aberdeen, Wash., boxer, in a 10-round headline bout at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

McTigue is campaigning once more to regain the light-heavyweight sceptre, now brandished by Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia. Several months ago, McTigue spoke out with a statement that he had put away the leather gloves for keeps after a career of more than a dozen years but the lure of the roped arena has been too great.

The survivor Friday night has been promised a tussle with Jimmy Slatery, Buffalo lad, and the victor in the latter bout will eventually be matched against Champion Loughran.

K. O. Phil Kaplan and Maxie Rosenbloom will hook up in a 10-round semi-final on the same card.

Two Hot Games Will Feature This Week

Chicago, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Northwestern, Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio State will provide the fireworks in this week's Big Ten basketball competition while Purdue serenely watches the contests from its top rung of the conference ladder.

Northwestern will have an opportunity to gain undisputed possession of second place in the race when it meets Minnesota at Evanston tonight. The Purple cagers have won three games and lost one. If they defeat Minnesota tonight, they will have a percentage of .800 or 50 points more than Wisconsin.

Because of Minnesota's defeat by Chicago Saturday night, Northwestern is favored to win handsily.

Ohio State, now tied for cellar position with Illinois and Iowa, will meet Minnesota at Minneapolis and Michigan will play Chicago at Chicago on Saturday.

The Boys Get New Bosses—For Life

In releasing Rogers Hornsby recently from the New York Giants, Charles A. Stoneham, president of the club, intimated that his players had too many managers. With the departure of Hornsby to the Boston Braves, the situation may not have been relieved entirely, however, as two of Stoneham's prize boys will have new managers with them next season.

Travis Jackson, regarded as the best shortstop in baseball, recently married Miss Mary Blackman, of Memphis, and you will see from the upper photograph that he is also a champion pitcher.

Freddy Lindstrom, star third baseman of the club, is to be married Feb. 14 in Chicago to Miss Irene Kiedalsch, a Chicago girl. Lindstrom and his fiancée are in the lower panel.

DEMPSEY'S DAY IN RING ENDS PAPER STATES

Chicago Paper Learns Ex-Champ's Eyes are Failing

BULLETIN

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Denying Chicago reports that Jack Dempsey had announced his retirement from the ring on account of eye trouble, Tex Rickard, New York boxing promoter, today told The Associated Press "it's an old story."

"There's nothing to it," he declared.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The Herald and Examiner in a copyrighted article today said that Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, has been forbidden by his physician ever to enter the ring again. The newspaper said the information was contained in a message received from Miami Beach, Fla., Dempsey having notified Tex Rickard, the promoter, who is there, of his decision.

The Dempsey telegram informed Rickard that Dempsey's eyes had gone back on him and that doctor's orders prohibited further fighting, the account added.

The Herald and Examiner said it had been unable to corroborate the facts from Dempsey's efforts to locate him in California proving unavailing.

The newspaper's Miami Beach informant understood that as a result of the former champion's decision, Rickard has finally abandoned hope of rematching Dempsey with Gene Tunney, titleholder, and is looking around for another challenger.

Continuing, the Herald and Examiner account said:

"The former champion's announcement, which upsets all Rickard's plans as well as those of Chicago promoters who were dickering for a Tunney-Dempsey bout, was entirely unexpected. Not even those close to Dempsey in Los Angeles had knowledge of it. It was only two weeks ago that Jack stated he was planning to go to New York to discuss a Yankee stadium bout with Rickard."

TRACK TALENT ADVANCE SHOW ON THURSDAY

Millrose Carnival to See Many of the Stars Compete

New York.—(AP)—The indoor track and field carnival of the Millrose Athletic Association, annually one of the most colorful fixtures of the winter season, will bring together a galaxy of internationally prominent stars on February 2 at Madison Square Garden.

The meeting is virtually an advance showing of Olympic talent, for scores of veterans as well as youngsters hopeful of making the trip to Amsterdam in July are among the entrants. National and college champions stud the list of participants, with the West as well as the East well represented.

The unexpected filing of an entry by Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany gave heightened interest in the meet although his participation was conditional upon action of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Further international flavor is given by the entry of two German walkers in the heel and toe feature. Canada's colors will be carried by several stars, among them Wallace Graham, the Canadian intercollegiate two-mile champion.

Lloyd Hahn, king pin of American milers, will meet old rivals in the Redman Wanamaker Mile, among them Jimmy Connolly of the New York A. C. and Joe Sivak of the Illinois A. C. Ray Conger, former Iowa star, is another entry.

The sprints will bring together such aces as Fred Alderman, captain of last year's Michigan State team and intercollegiate quarter-mile champion; Karl Wildermuth, the Georgetown sophomore sensation; Polwell Seull, Pennsylvania football star; Frank Hussey, who is attempting a come-back; Al Miller, 200 pound Harvard speed merchant; and Robert Greenwade, "dark horse" from Silver City, New Mexico.

Herman Phillips of the Illinois A. C., national 440-yard champion, is an entry in the classic Millrose "600" while his team-mate Leo Lariviere, former Holy Cross miller, is a contender for honors in the 1,000 yard event, where he will meet an old foe in McCloskey of the Boston A. A.

Harold Osborn, another veteran and Olympic champion, will meet such seasoned high jumpers as Charlie Major, Anton Burg and Juday.

Caulum, star of the Iowa State two-mile relay team entered in the meet, also will seek individual honors in the half-mile race against "Pinkie" Sober of New York and others.

The two-mile field, besides two Canadians in Graham and Keay, numbers Johnny Romig, Jimmy Loucks, Leo Larmond and Ed. Kirby among its entries.

Wants Three Races

Chicago, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Dr. Otto Peltzer, German half-mile champion, plans to give American track stars plenty of competition during his present tour of this country if the foreign relations committee of the Amateur Athletic Union permits.

After a busy day in Chicago yesterday, he wired the A. A. U. officials for permission to appear in three meets and expressed a desire to compete in national championships if amateur officials in Germany and this country will sanction it. The three meets and the specified distances are: The Millrose Games, Feb. 2 at 800 meters, Illinois Athletic Club meet, February 10 at 1,000 meters and the New York K. of C. meet, February 2, at 100 meters.

The German runner will meet with the foreign relations committee in New York on Wednesday.

Stars are Scholars

Austin, Tex.—(AP)—The two co-captains of the St. Edwards University football team for next fall rank high in scholarship.

Although football took much of their time in the first semester of the present school year, Sam Dyer, all-Texas conference halfback, made an average grade of 88, and Al Sarafny averaged 93 while making a record as one of the most dependable centers in the conference.

Both are juniors. Dyer is specializing in business administration and Sarafny in mathematics.

Sox Sign Semi-Pros

Chicago, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Three promising amateur and semi-pro pitchers were signed by the Chicago White Sox baseball club today. They are Clifford Nelson, Hammond, Ind.; Elmer Bray, University of Washington at Seattle; and Eulogio "Speed" Luque from the Commercial League, San Francisco. Each is 21 years old.

To Attempt Come-Back

Chicago, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Frankie Schaeffer, Chicago's hard hitting junior welterweight, will attempt another comeback tonight when he meets Joe Chaney of Baltimore in a ten round match. Schaeffer lost to Spug Myers of Pocatello, Idaho, in his last bout.

CHILEAN TAKES COUNT AT END OF THIRD ROUND

Basque Woodchopper is Winner of Fight in Mexican Capital

Mexico City, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Paulino Uzcudun, Basque woodchopper, today holds the heavyweight championship of Latin America, attained by the knockout route.

A relentless attack near the end of the third round by Uzcudun felled his Chilean rival, Quintin Romero-Rojas, in their scheduled 15-round encounter yesterday. The Chilean was counted out.

The Basque had such a slight advantage in the first two rounds that the knockout came with a suddenness which surprised the spectators. Just before the volley of blows which decided the match, Romero put up his hands to guard his face. His body thus was left unprotected. Paulino pounded the Chilean below the heart with a shower of rights and lefts. Romero crumpled and sank, writhing to the canvas.

The Chilean was aggressive during the first two rounds and courageous to the end. The fighting was mostly at close quarters. Although Romero smashed several rights and lefts into Paulino's body, he seemed unable to do any damage.

Paulino drove Romero into the corners at the beginning of the first round. He continued to hammer his opponent whenever an opening was presented.

After he had been counted out, Romero recovered quickly. He showed no trace of punishment, while Paulino bled profusely about the face, particularly from the mouth.

Approximately 40,000 persons cheered the victor for several minutes after Romero shook him by the hand. Paulino smiled and then entertained the spectators with gymnastic stunts which drew more applause.

Receipts were estimated at $50,000.

Fans Watch "Barney"

Washington.—(AP)—Habit is sometimes hard to break and Washington fans who have been Walter Johnson addicts for 20 years show no desire to be cured.

Those afflicted hopelessly with the Walter Johnson germ are busy building and rebuilding Johnson's Newmark International League club. Newmark happens to be in the same league with Baltimore, and many a capital fan will journey to the Maryland city in the hope of seeing the "Big Train" in action next season.

The fans of the capital are keeping a close tab on the Newark club, which already promises to have color in abundance. Already the speed ball king has acquired Bob Shawkey, the former red shirted Yankee, Bill Lamar, the Athletics former slugging outfielder; Jacques Pournier, the Brooklyn Dodger, whose home runs will help Newark considerably; Hugh McQuillan, erstwhile Giant star and McGraw's bad boy, and Jack Bentley, the singing, left-hand-first-baseman-pitcher-pinch hitter.

Johnson, with 20 years of major league friendship, may be able to turn other trades to further his success in his first venture as a team manager.

hibited by any of the National League moundsmen.

When the Yankees get through dickering with their players over 1928 contracts it is likely that the payroll of the world's champions will be well in excess of $300,000 for the year, a record for all time in baseball.

Ruth's $70,000 salary, topping the list, is the same as last season but Hoyt, Gehrig, Moore, Pippas, Lazzeri, Combs and Koenig all may be considered eligible for increases.

Gehrig already has had a substantial boost, signing a three year contract that gives him $20,000 this year, $25,000 in 1929 and $30,000 in 1930.

It is bad news for the National League's curve ball artists to hear that Joe (Moon) Harris has signed a Pirate contract for 1928 and expects to alternate with George Grantham at first base.

Illness handicapped Harris most of last year. The veteran was in the game at times when he should have been in a hospital. At the close of the World's Series he indicated he would retire from the game and thereby lighten the burden of fingers who have tried and failed for years to bend 'em past "Old Joe."

But the old urge to come back and slap a few more curves to all corners of the park apparently persists.

LINDY, LOST IN FOG, APOLOGIZED TO VENEZUELAN

Delayed an Hour Making Trip to Caracas Sunday Afternoon

Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Venezuela today honored an intrepid aviator who after a flight over perilous mountains lost his way in a fog, but despite these obstacles reached his goal.

Arriving at Maracay, fifty miles west of here, ten hours after he started from Bogota, Colombia, Charles A. Lindbergh's first act was to apologize to President Gomez for having kept him waiting at the flying field. An anxious crowd had awaited his arrival for two hours. His flight covered 650 miles, airline.

Lindbergh told the President that after reaching Ortiz, about 110 miles south of Caracas, he ran into a fog. He then lost his way. It was growing late when he found the coast at Higuerote, 100 miles east of here and 150 miles from his destination. Once he had found the way he sped toward Caracas passing over the city at 5:15 P. M. The Spirit of St. Louis then followed the concrete road from the Capital to the field.

Lindbergh landed at 6 P. M. When the aviator apologized to the President for his lateness, the President replied that his only wish was for Lindbergh to arrive safely in order that he might welcome him. President Gomez then embraced the aviator and gave him the decoration of the Order of the Liberator.

G. Jameson, in Prince's Gate, where he had been staying recently. He was 70 years old at the time of his death.

Lindbergh had promised that he would be here at 3 p. m. Well before the time, however, the Spirit of St. Louis came into sight, cleaving its way through a bank of fleecy white clouds, the plane swept low over Madrid field, while thousands cheered. The plane then swept upward and headed for Bogota.

A few minutes later Lindbergh was circling the capital.

Just as the hands of the clock pointed to 3, Lindbergh landed on the flying field.

The crowd surged forward. A detachment from the aviation school quickly surrounded the plane to protect it from damage. As Lindbergh stepped from the plane, he was picked up by some of the crowd who carried him to the place of honor. The band struck up the American national anthem and then that of Colombia. General Reyes Luna, secretary of the Minister of War, extended the greetings of the nation.

As the flyer rode through the narrow streets of the city, a shower of flowers fell upon him from the balconies where dark eyed señoritas stood.

President Mendez will bestow upon Lindbergh the coveted Boyaca Cross before he leaves for Caracas, Venezuela, Sunday.

There will also be a bull fight in his honor, the third to be staged for the flyer in his tour.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH BOYNTON CAMPAIGN.

Last night the pastor preached to a large and attentive audience on the subject of "The Borrowed Cross."

He said, "There occurs nowhere in history a case like the Master's for self emptying. He emptied Himself to prove to be true by His lack of worldly possessions. So poor that a manger had to be borrowed for Him to be born in. When someone wanted to follow Him, he said, 'Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath nowhere to lay His head.' When the multitude were hungry in the wilderness He had to borrow from the larder of the five loaves and two fishes that he might feed them and then gave back to the lad from whom He had borrowed, twelve baskets full of the fragments that were left. He had to send to Bethphage to borrow the ass that He rode into Jerusalem on that last Palm Sunday. The room in which He held His last passover in was borrowed also.

But the greatest borrowing of all was the cross on which He was crucified. By right it was made for Barabbas, the noted robber and insurrectionist and not for Christ, but their choice then, they cried, 'Not this man but Barabbas.' And after the borrowed robes of Herod had been put upon Him, and after crucifixion He took that borrowed cross upon His poor bruised shoulders and tried to carry it to Calvary. Simon the Cyrenian carried it for Him. 'There they crucified Him.'

After His death one would have thought that the borrowings would cease but they did not for they laid in borrowed robes in the borrowed tomb of Joseph of Arimathea but death could not hold his prey He arose from the grave and at the right hand of God the Father His borrowings have ceased for ever and he ever reigns a Mighty King and Conqueror having purchased for us on His borrowed cross redemption and life which He now proffers to each of us.

Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, lung diseases and other forms of respiratory diseases and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. precedent thing and act on the primary law the first day it meets, and should find the law constitutional, even this action would not definitely clear the way.

The reason is that the test case in which a decision is expected is entirely separate from the case in which Judge Fisher handed down his decree, and their status in the court differs.

The Cook county case was brought before the court just recently. It is now on the civil docket, set for call February 17. The attorney prosecuting the suit has until February 7, to file briefs, and the attorney general's office has additional time after that to make an answer.

Should the court hold, on the first day it meets, that the primary act of 1927 is constitutional, the Attorney General, undoubtedly, will immediately enter a motion that the court dissolve the Cook county injunction suit. Whether the court will act as quickly is problematical.

Emmerson's Problem.

Meanwhile, Mr. Emmerson has a delicate problem. Should he accept petitions now, he will be making himself liable to a charge of contempt of Judge Fisher's court. Should he refuse them when they come in the mail, a hopeless mess will ensue if the primary act is found constitutional.

One way has been suggested. Petitions will arrive in the mail. The daily mail must be opened. It was offered that whenever the person opening the mail found a petition, he should mark it if the date received and lay it aside. The question here is whether the use of a lead pencil in marking the petition could be interpreted as "use of materials" and in violation of the decree.

The county clerk of Sangamon has suggested a way out for the clerks. He declared he would accept petitions, since he is not specifically named in Judge Fisher's decree.

The attorney general has not been officially requested for advice by the Secretary of State, although informal conferences have been held to discuss the matter. The secretary has not decided yet just what course of action he will follow.

Dawes' Brother is Called as Witness

Washington, Jan. 28.—(AP)—Benjamin G. Dawes, brother of Vice-President Dawes, heads a new list of witnesses summoned by the Senate lands committee in its resumed investigation of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve leasing.

Mr. Dawes of Columbus, Ohio is Chairman of the Board of the Pure Oil Company. The Senate committee desires to know whether his company had any relations with the Continental Trading Company of Canada, the immediate object of inquiry. The Canadian concern, now out of existence, was one of the interests of Harry F. Sinclair, who leased Teapot Dome.

The committee will resume sessions on Tuesday and in addition to Mr. Dawes, has summoned Robert W. Stewart, Chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Stewart was one of those who guaranteed the Canadian company's contract to purchase oil and re-sell it to other concerns, including his own. It became the profit of the Canadian corporation is the first concern of the new investigation.

EIGHT ARRESTED IN CHICAGO WAR ON "BOMB TRUST"

Raid Frustrated Attempt to Bomb City "Pest" Hospital

Chicago, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Eight persons were under arrest today following raids conducted against what Deputy Commissioner O'Connor has termed the "Bomb Trust."

A raid on a near-northside hotel where three men and a woman were taken, frustrated police believe, an attempt to bomb the city-owned Lawndale Isolation Hospital. The hospital bombing was planned, said detectives, as another dynamite intimidation of the administration of Mayor Thompson. Homes of two of his closest political associates, City Comptroller Charles Fitzmorris and Dr. William H. Reid, were bombed last week.

The Fitzmorris and Reid bombings, the warning that the Lawndale Hospital was to be bombed and the telephone threats of Saturday against the apartment building in which Mayor Thompson lives have been linked together as part of a "bomb trust" plan to intimidate Mayor Thompson for clamping the lid on gangsters and open gambling.

Detective bureau squads with machine guns have been guarding the Lawndale Hospital since Saturday when underground channels carried word of the threatened bombing to the police. The same underground tipsters gave the information on which police went to room 301 of a hotel on North State Street and arrested three men and a woman.

Police said they found nitroglycerin, hammer, drills, percussion caps and short lengths of rope in the room, which was occupied by George Ross, alias Freeman, and Hazel Freeman, his wife. These two, together with Ernest Neilson and Allen Monan, were arrested.

Five other arrests were made during the day and night, but all were released under bond.

Opera is Costly

Chicago, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The 1927-1928 season of the Chicago Civic Opera, which closes tonight with the presentation of "Martha," has proved a costly one to its guarantors.

Samuel Insull, president of the opera organization, in a report to guarantors at a gala performance last night said they would be called upon to pay 90 percent of their $500,000 guaranty and probably the same amount next year.

Mr. Insull's report showed an increase in the number of performances with about a corresponding increase in attendance and a slightly higher revenue from seats and boxes.

Outlining plans for financing the new $200,000 skyscraper opera house, he said: "The work of preparation is finished; the work of financing is completed. It has been financed by obtaining a loan from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of $100,000,000 and underwriting $100,000,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock."

Work of construction will be started immediately. We are hoping to be renting space a year from the coming spring, and if everything goes right, we expect to give opera in the new house in October or November of 1929."

DEAD IN OIL FIRE

McCamery, Tex., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Blackened and twisted sheet metal of a dozen oil tanks today marked the site of an spectacular fire here that caused one death and resulted in damage estimated to upwards of $100,000. Five men were injured slightly.

Starting yesterday afternoon with a terrific explosion in one of the 3,000 barrel tanks of the Humble Oil & Refining Company, the flames spread to eleven more tanks, filled for the most part with gasoline. Fred Hendricks, chemist, who was inspecting the tank when it exploded, was hurled high in the air and fell back into the fire. His body was not recovered.

RAILROADS WILL USE RADIO NEXT IN TRAIN CONTROL

Radio Commission Told
by President Am. Ry.
Association

Washington—(AP)—Railroads plan to go rapidly forward in the next five years in establishing radio communication for handling freight trains. R. H. Ashton, president of the American Railway Association, has informed the Federal Radio Commission.

Experiments in communication between the locomotive and caboose of a freight train and between the office and switch engine in a big railroad yard have indicated radio service is reliable and economical. Mr. Ashton told the commission.

The greater efficiency and safer handling of freight trains must necessarily result in a saving of time and consequent reduction in the handling cost of the nation's freight and the improvement of this service, all of which is very clearly in the public interest, Mr. Ashton declared.

The development of train radio communication, using low-power transmitters, has proceeded in the short wave band of 109 to 130 meters, G. T. Stanton, chairman of the radio committee of the railway association said. Experiments have indicated that these wavelengths are the most desirable for train service, he added.

"This is due to the fact that the antenna is limited in length by conditions governing its mounting on the locomotive or caboose," Mr. Stanton said.

"The efficiency is very low due to the high absorption of radiated energy by the steel mass of the locomotive and the steel parts of the caboose. Wavelengths substantially above this band would require an antenna of such length as to be impossible of mounting upon railroad rolling stock or would require loading to such an extent that the already inefficient radiation would be reduced."

Any substantial increase in the wavelength also would place this service near the lower limits of the broadcast band and might cause some interference with broadcast receivers near the railroad right of way, Mr. Stanton asserted.

Attempts have been made to determine whether or not interference with broadcast programs can be caused by the train sets. A test was made recently at Richmond, Va., when an impromptu program was broadcast by the train transmitter for one hour.

Frequent announcements were made that this program was from the train and all persons hearing the program were requested to report reception. Mr. Stanton says not a single report was received. Only one case of interference was reported and upon investigation the set was found to be a regenerative receiver made in 1922. The voice from the train was faintly heard as the train passed within 300 feet.

Radio adds materially in the elimination of train delays occasioned by lack of communication and reduces the time consumed in performing switching operations, recalling flagmen and starting trains, Mr. Stanton declared. It also provides a means of notifying the engineers in cases of emergency to stop the train.

'The Kid is Made the Goat

(The following is one of a series of articles prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial as part of its Better Health and Longer Life program. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Memorial, which has been organized and endowed by prominent doctors and laymen throughout the country to perpetuate the work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 400 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago.)

I have spent many hours in my classroom demonstrating to medical students the differences in the structure of the child's physique and its functioning, as compared with those of the adult man or woman. With all the apparent resemblances it surprises the uninitiated how many points of unlikeness are really present.

The anatomy of the growing child differs from the adult in the size of its parts as compared with each other, and in the proportions of the individual parts. The bones differ in their composition and their marrow; and their shafts or bodies are but weakly joined to the ends which go to form joints. Muscles, sinews and ligaments differ in their delicacy, the fat in its quality and distribution. The brain and nerves and the internal organs differ in development and power of functioning.

All these differences are rapidly undergoing changes according to the age and stage of development of the child. These peculiarities cause different reactions when the young organism has to cope with heat and cold, foods and drinks, accidents and injuries, and all the factors of its environment, including the numerous germs of infections and contagions which assail it. For it has not yet acquired its immunities, which all must acquire to live.

These statements apply to children normal at birth. But great numbers are not normal. They are handicapped by malformations, or defective constitutions, which must be dealt with promptly in early life. Of abnormal conditions afflicting infants and children, some are found at no other time of life. Others, although they may occur to adults, in children present different symptoms, run a different course, and bring results and after-effects different from those in the adult.

These statements are true of surgical conditions as well as medical. A great amount of special knowledge and skill is required on the part of the physician or the surgeon to give children the best possible treatment today. This fact has come to be generally understood as it applies to medical diseases, but many parents are not aware that the same holds true in cases of surgical disease, deformity, or injury. The child's surgeon, as well as his physician, should be one who, besides his general professional knowledge, is especially educated and skilful in work among children.

Otherwise the result is that, in the language of the day, the "kid" is made the goat.

THE 'CANARY' MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR OF 'THE ARMY'

CHARACTERS

PHIL VANCE, JOHN P. X. MARKHAM, District Attorney of New York County

MARGARET ODELL (THE 'CANARY')

CHARLES CLEVER, a man-about-town

KENNETH SPOTSWOOD, a manufacturer

LOUIS MANNIX, an importer

DR. ANDREW LINQUIST, a fashionable neurologist

TONY SKEEL, a professional burglar

WILLIAM ELMER JESSUP, telephone operator

HARRY SPIVLEY, telephone operator

ERNEST HEATH, Sergeant of the Homicide Bureau

THE STORY THUS FAR

Vance's theory is that two unknown persons were in Margaret Odell's apartment that fatal evening; one hiding in a clothes closet, the other the man who strangled her. In no way can the police account for the presence of anyone in the apartment. The door to the attic was bolted on the inside and the man who had gone out with the "canary" the night before had been the only one to be seen with her, and circumstances completely eliminated him. There is another man who called while she was out, but one of the phone operators testifies that he had been unable to get in the apartment.

CHAPTER XIII
An ugly light came into Heath's eyes.

"We've got ways," he said through his teeth, "of getting damn interesting conversation outa people who haven't no great reputation for repartee."

Vance sighed. "How the Four Hundred needs you, my Sergeant!" Markham looked at his watch.

"I've got pressing work at the office," he said, "and all this talk isn't getting us anywhere." He put his hand on Heath's shoulder. "I leave you to go ahead. This afternoon I'll have these people brought down to my office for an other questioning—maybe I can jog their memories a bit. . . . You've got some line of investigation planned?"

"The usual routine," replied Heath drearily. "I'll go through Odell's papers, and I'll have three or four of my men check up on her."

"You'd better get after the Yel low Taxicab company right away," Markham suggested. "Find out, if you can, who the man was who left here at half past eleven last night, and where he went."

"Do you imagine for one moment," asked Vance, "that if this man knew anything about the murder, he would have stopped in the hall and asked the operator to call a taxi for him?"

"Oh, I don't look for much in that direction," Markham's tone was almost listless. "But the girl may have said something to him that'll give us a lead."

Vance shook his head facetiously. "O welcome pure-eyed Faith, white-handed Hope, thou hovering angel girl with golden wings!"

Markham was in no mood for chaffing. He turned to Heath and spoke with forced cheeriness. "Call me up later this afternoon I may get some new evidence out of the outfit we've just interviewed."

"And," he added, "be sure to put a man on guard here. I want this apartment kept just as it is until we see a little more light."

"I'll attend to that," Heath assured him.

Markham and Vance and I went out and entered the cab. A few minutes later we were winding rapidly across town through Central Park.

"Recall our recent conversation about footprints in the snow?" asked Vance, as we emerged into Fifth Avenue and headed south.

Markham nodded abstractedly. "As I remember," mused Vance. "In the hypothetical case you presented there were not only footprints but a dozen or more well-defined impressions—including a youthful prodigy—who saw a figure of some kind cross the hibernial landscape."

Here you are in a most beastly posture because of the disheartening fact that there are neither footprints in the snow nor witnesses who saw a fleeing figure. In short, you are bereft of both direct and circumstantial evidence."

He wagged his head dolefully. "I know, Markham, it appears to me that the testimony in this case constitutes conclusive legal proof that no one could have been with the deceased at the hour of her passing, and that, ergo, she is presumably alive. The strangled body of the lady is, I take it, simply an irrelevant circumstance from the standpoint of legal procedure."

I know that you learned lawyers won't admit a murder without a body; but how, in sweet Heaven's name, do you get around a corpus delicti without a murder?"

"You're talking nonsense," Markham rebuked him, with a show of anger.

"Oh, quite," agreed Vance. "And yet, it's a distressful thought for a lawyer not to have footprints of some kind, isn't it, old dear? It leaves one so up in the air."

Suddenly Markham swung round. "You, of course, don't need footprints, or any other kind of material clues," he flung at Vance tauntingly. "You have powers of divination such as are denied ordinary mortals. If I remember correctly, you informed me, somewhat grandiloquently, that, knowing the nature and conditions of a crime, you could lead me infallibly to the culprit, whether he left footprints or not. You recall that boast?"

Well, here's a crime, and the perpetrator left no footprints coming or going. Be so good as to end my suspense by confiding in me who killed the Odell girl."

Vance's serenity was not ruffled by Markham's ill-humored challenge. He sat smoking lazily for several minutes; then he leaned over and flicked his cigar ash out of the window.

"Don't mind me," Markham said, "I'm half inclined to look into this silly murder. I think I'll wait, though, and see whom the nonplussed Heath turns up with his inquiries."

Markham grunted scornfully, and sank back on the cushions. "Your generosity wrings me," he said.

(Tuesday, September 11; afternoon)

On our way down town that morning we were delayed for a considerable time in the traffic congestion just north of Madison Square, and Markham anxiously looked at his watch.

"It's past noon," he said. "I think I'll stop at the club and have a bite of lunch. . . . I presume that eating at this early hour would be too pebbles for so exquisite a hothouse flower as you."

Vance considered the invitation. "Since you deprived me of my breakfast," he decided, "I'll permit you to buy me some eggs Benedict."

A few minutes later we entered the almost empty grill of the Stuyvesant Club, and took a table near one of the windows looking southward over the treetops of Madison Square.

Shortly after we had given our order a uniformed attendant entered and, bowing deferentially at the district attorney's elbow, held out an unaddressed communication sealed in one of the club's envelopes. Markham read it with an expression of growing curiosity, and as he studied the signature a look of mild surprise came into his eyes. At length he looked up and nodded to the waiting attendant. Then, excusing himself, he left us abruptly. It was fully twenty minutes before he returned.

"Funny thing," he said. "That note was from the man who took the Odell woman to dinner and the theater last night. . . . A small world," he mused. "He's staying here at the club—he's a non-resident member and makes it his headquarters when he's in town."

"You know him?" Vance put the question disinterestedly.

"I've met him several times—chap named Spotswood," Markham seemed puzzled. "He's a man of family, lives in a country house on Long Island, and is regarded generally as a highly respectable member of society—one of the last persons I'd suspect of being mixed up with the Odell girl. But, according to his own confession, he played around a good deal with her during his visits to New York—sowing a few belated wild oats," as he expressed it—and last night took her to Francella's for dinner and to the Winter Garden afterwards."

"Not my idea of an intellectual, or even edifying, evening," commented Vance. "And he selected a deuced unlucky day for it. . . . I say, imagine opening the morning paper and learning that your petite dame of the preceding evening had been strangled! Disconcerting, what?"

"He's certainly disconcerted," said Markham. "The early afternoon papers were out about an hour ago, and he'd been phoning my office every ten minutes, when I suddenly walked in here. He's afraid his connection with the girl will leak out and disgrace him."

"And won't it?"

"I hardly see the necessity. No one knows who her escort was last evening; and since he obviously had nothing to do with the crime, what's to be gained by dragging him into it? He told me the whole story, and offered to stay in the city as long as I wanted him to."

"I infer, from the cloud of disappointment that enveloped you when you returned just now that his story held nothing hopeful for you in the way of clues."

"No," Markham admitted. "The girl apparently never spoke to him of her intimate affairs; and he couldn't give me a single helpful suggestion. His account of what happened last night agreed perfectly with Jessup's. He called for the girl at seven, brought her home at about eleven, stayed with her half an hour or so, and then left her."

"When he heard her call for help he was frightened, but on being assured by her there was nothing wrong, he concluded she had dozed off into a nightmare, and thought no more about it."

"He drove direct to the club here, arriving about ten minutes to twelve. Judge Redfern, who saw him descend from the taxi, insisted on his coming upstairs and playing poker with some men who were waiting in the judge's rooms for him. They played until three o'clock this morning."

"When he heard her call for help he was frightened, but concluded she had dozed off into a nightmare."

about footprints in the snow?" asked Vance, as we emerged into Fifth Avenue and headed south.

Markham nodded abstractedly. "As I remember," mused Vance. "In the hypothetical case you presented there were not only footprints but a dozen or more well-defined impressions—including a youthful prodigy—who saw a figure of some kind cross the hibernial landscape."

Here you are in a most beastly posture because of the disheartening fact that there are neither footprints in the snow nor witnesses who saw a fleeing figure. In short, you are bereft of both direct and circumstantial evidence."

He wagged his head dolefully. "I know, Markham, it appears to me that the testimony in this case constitutes conclusive legal proof that no one could have been with the deceased at the hour of her passing, and that, ergo, she is presumably alive. The strangled body of the lady is, I take it, simply an irrelevant circumstance from the standpoint of legal procedure."

I know that you learned lawyers won't admit a murder without a body; but how, in sweet Heaven's name, do you get around a corpus delicti without a murder?"

"You're talking nonsense," Markham rebuked him, with a show of anger.

"Oh, quite," agreed Vance. "And yet, it's a distressful thought for a lawyer not to have footprints of some kind, isn't it, old dear? It leaves one so up in the air."

Suddenly Markham swung round. "You, of course, don't need footprints, or any other kind of material clues," he flung at Vance tauntingly. "You have powers of divination such as are denied ordinary mortals. If I remember correctly, you informed me, somewhat grandiloquently, that, knowing the nature and conditions of a crime, you could lead me infallibly to the culprit, whether he left footprints or not. You recall that boast?"

Well, here's a crime, and the perpetrator left no footprints coming or going. Be so good as to end my suspense by confiding in me who killed the Odell girl."

CAREER OF GOV. OF LOUISIANA LIKE A NOVEL

Story of His Life is Like That of One of Alger's Boys

By NEA Service—

Shreveport, La.—Other states have had politicians with nicknames similar to Huey P. Long's first name and have not boasted of them, but Louisiana is proud of its Huey, whose life story reads like that of an Horatio Alger, Jr. hero with "It".

Long, who is only 34 years old, is assured of being Louisiana's next governor. His opponents for the Democratic nomination have withdrawn, leaving Huey with the nomination that is equivalent to election in that southern state.

Since his birth on a northern Louisiana farm, where as soon as he was old enough to ride a horse he received his first diplomatic experience rounding up his father's herd of eight hundred wild hogs every night, Long has built a reputation for tenaciousness, legal astuteness and campaigning ability. He is credited with a long line of legal victories which have resulted in lowered railroad and telephone rates in his own state.

Read Bible Many Times

Books were scarce in rural Louisiana when Long was a boy. The Bible was the library in many homes.

"I don't know how many times I've read it through," Long said. "But I've read it from cover to cover many times and didn't miss Sunday school until I was a grown boy. That was in the days, too, when if you went to Sunday school, you went to church. They didn't ask you if you wanted to stay or not."

He received his first oratorical experience at 13. He and a 15-year-old friend struck up an acquaintance with an itinerant auctioneer of books who made frequent trips through northern Louisiana. The two boys convinced him that they could sell books to the natives they knew so well. The bookseller extended them a credit of $1000 in merchandise and, rigging up a mule cart, the boys started out.

They ended up $280 short of $1000 and had to work a month to make up the deficit.

Undaunted, the pair tried it again. They sold the last of their books one night in a county seat town and counting up the proceeds found they were $7 ahead. A few minutes later their mule ran away and the $7 was spent in repairing the wagon.

Their next trip netted them $4. Feeling prosperous, the boys stayed at a hotel that night and in the morning one of them broke the water pitcher and bowl in their room. The hotel keeper swore they were worth $4. The boys were too young to swear, but paid the $4.

Huey retreated to a printing office where type is not so easily broken as mule carts and china pitchers. At 15 he edited a small weekly paper.

Before finishing high school, the young printer forsook his type case for a sample case and started selling cooking oil to Louisiana housewives. To promote sales he staged baking contests in various communities and thereby cooked up a romance.

The scene was Shreveport. The hero was the destined governor of the state. The action turned around a contest to see which Shreveport woman could bake the best cake. All sorts of dire things could happen to a lad bold and reckless enough to conceive such an idea.

But Huey's luck had changed since the days of the mule cart and the ill-starred night in the country hotel with the $4 crockery.

He sampled the fine specimens of southern cookery his contest had evoked and found one irresistible. He met the girl who had baked it, Miss Rose McConnell, and found her equally so. Two years later she became Mrs. Huey P. Long.

Meanwhile, Oklahoma had begun to boom and attracted the young drummer. He worked his way through the University of Oklahoma for a year, studying law, and then returned to his selling.

During the Christmas holidays of 1912, Long returned to Shreveport to visit Miss McConnell, with whom he had corresponded since the day he first notified her that a cake she had baked stood high in his estimation.

One evening the two went to the opera. Two days later the future governor of the state was in jail in Shreveport charged with shooting on a down-town street at two persons and narrowly missing a third. He was held for several hours and finally let out on bond.

He and Miss McConnell investigated and learned the shooting had occurred while they were at the opera. The girl had saved the ticket stubs for her scrap book; several of her friends had seen her there. They would be able to prove an alibi.

Meanwhile, a boyhood friend of Long's who resembled him closely, came to Long's hotel room on night and admitted that he had done the shooting. He pleaded with Long not to implicate him.

Had His Identity

Confident he would be able to prove his alibi, Long agreed not to disclose his friend's name. The "double" fled to Dallas, Texas, and is a prominent business man there today, Long says. Long was freed of the charges and has never divulged the name of the man who fired the shots.

When he left Shreveport, he and Miss McConnell were engaged. He wrote his parents that he intended to be married. They objected because he was only 19 and threatened to notify every license clerk in the state not to issue him a license.

He phoned his fiancée at Shreveport by long distance from Memphis. She arrived on the next train and they were married there.

After their marriage, Mrs. Long encouraged her husband's ambition to return to college to complete his law course. He entered Tulane in the fall of 1914 with enough money to pay for one year's education. During that time he had to complete a three-year course and pass a bar examination.

He did it, and started practicing in his home town of Winnfield. His first "big" case was that of a widow against a local bank. He needed $50 to post as bond in the action and had twelve hours in which to raise it. In desperation he sought loan from Senator S. J. Harper, a director of the bank he was suing. He got the loan and won his case.

Paying an Old Debt

Long had his opportunity some years later to pay back Senator Harper. During the war the senator believed that wealth should be conscripted as well as men. He was so bold as to write a book on the subject and was arrested by the federal government under the espionage act.

No lawyer would touch the case. Long heard of it and rushed to the aged senator's defense. He won that case, too, one of the very few cases of its kind in which the defendant was freed.

From this time on, Long's battles became more and more spectacular. He became a member of the Louisiana public service commission and waged relentless war on exorbitant rates.

In his career he has never prosecuted a poor man on behalf of a rich one, he says. Rich against rich or poor against rich, but never the reverse; and at 34 he is Louisiana's choice as its chief executive.

FIGHTS LOWER RATES

Chicago, Jan. 28.—(AP)—The principal grain carrying railroads have been the slowest to recover from post-war depression, declared C. E. Spens, vice president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, at an Interstate Commerce Commission grain lowering freight charges would seriously injure these roads, already suffering from instability of agriculture.

BIG DIRIGIBLE ALIGHTS ON DECK OF CARRIER SHIP

American Navy Accomplished Great Feat Sea Friday

Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 28.—(AP)—After alighting on the deck of the airplane carrier Saratoga at sea off Newport, R. I., the first dirigible ever to have accomplished that feat, the Los Angeles was safely back in her hangar today.

Although Commander Charles E. Rosendahl was noncommittal on his return, Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, Chief of the Bureau of Naval Aeronautics at Washington, was enthusiastic in his praise of the feat and the possibilities it shows.

The operation was a hazardous one, as the big silver bag is 680 feet long and the entire length of the Saratoga is only 880 feet, little more than half of which is available as a landing stage.

Although Navy officials here refused to discuss the details, referring all inquiries to Washington, it was assumed that the operations took place in the following manner, as they had been carefully rehearsed on paper.

How Feat Was Done

With both ships making good speed, that of the Saratoga being estimated at between 25 to 30 knots, the Los Angeles nosed gently down and came to a stop with its control cabin just barely touching the deck. She lay with her nose just abaft the funnels and superstructure of the airplane mother, her stern sticking far out over the stern of the Saratoga.

To bring the dirigible down, lines were thrown to the crew of the Saratoga who helped warp the big ship into position. This was extremely hazardous to the men on the lines, it was pointed out, especially if a heavy sea had been running, but it was decided in the interest of naval science to take a chance.

Could Be Refueled

She could be safely lashed in this position, experts thought, until refueling operations could be completed. To make the test more complete refueling equipment was placed with which such operations could be simulated.

Satisfied the test was a success, Commander Rosendahl found it easy to cast off from the Saratoga and point the big ship back toward her hangar.

Rear Admiral Moffett regards the test as showing that it is practicable to land lighter-than-air ships on commercial as well as naval carriers. He called particular attention to the value of the test in that it shows that the possibilities of refueling a dirigible at sea have been greatly increased.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"LOVE" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, January 29.

The Golden Text was from Romans 13:10, "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us. And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him" (1 John 4:12, 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "That God is a corporeal being, nobody can truly affirm. . . . Not materially but spiritually we know Him as divine Mind, as Life, Truth, and Love" (p. 140).

RICHARD BARTHELMESS 'THE NOOSE'

It's tense—gripping! A virile story of sacrifice and mother-love—the most dramatic picturization of one of Broadway's five greatest stage plays! Broadway will remember it forever—you'll never be able to forget it!

ALSO 2-REEL COMEDY

WE RECOMMEND THIS PICTURE TO YOU. When you see it you will recommend it to your friends. In all our experience we never have seen a picture that was really remarkable in so many different ways as is

"THE NOOSE"

We have never witnessed a production which developed a great story so naturally, so humanly, as does "The NOOSE." It touches sublime heights in the powerful themes of underworld suspense, mother-love and young sweetheart romance.

And we have never seen a star any greater than in this amazing picturization of a notable stage success. Alice Joyce, Montagu Love and others surpass themselves in the inspiration that this story brought them.

"The Noose" is First National's crowning achievement in fine picture making.

WE URGE YOU TO SEE IT TODAY & TOMORROW. Owing to big demand we were only able to book this picture for 2 days.

"Sane Methods of Regulation Assure the Conservation of Public Rights"

Says Christian Science Monitor

"Such a concert between public and private interests as is now proposed was not known to be possible a score of years ago. The public feared the oppression of monopolies, the complete usurpation of the State's prerogatives. But there have been worked out those sane and equitable methods of regulatory control which assure a fair return to invested wealth and at the same time the conservation of public rights and privileges."
